IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY OF MY HUSBAND TRAVIS T. WOOLDRIDGE, who passed away four years ago, October 1, 1965.

Little did I know when dawn that morning
What sorrow the day would bring.
The end was sudden,
The shock severe.
To part with the one I loved so dear.

You do not know the sorrow to be left alone,
'Til God sends a message into your home.
Home is not Home
For he is not there
Angels have taken him out of our care.
Dark is his room
Empty is his chair
He has gone to a land
So precious and fair.
Sadly missed by wife, children, and grandchildren. 10-2-1p

Put Burden On Salesman, Says Abbitt

WASHINGTON– Representative Watkins M. Abbitt (D-Va.) today, Sept. 30, urged that Congress curb the flow of pornography by requiring mailing firms to obtain prior approval from recipients before sending advertisement through the mail.

In a statement to the Postal Operations Subcommittee of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, the Virginia Congressman urged that provisions of his anti-pornography ill be included in any legislation recommended by the Committee to deal with the problem.

Abbitt asserted that Congress has a duty to "protect the interest of householders who object to having unsolicited advertisements of pornographic material mailed to their homes." He said the provisions of his bill "would provide the vehicle for transferring the burden of policing such materials from the Post Office Department to the promoters themselves," and charged that decisions by the Supreme Court "seem to give aide and comfort to those who care very little about the moral fiber of the Nation."

In explaining the purpose of his bill, Abbitt said "obviously the purveyors of this pornographic material depend to a large extent on the use of the mails in order to promote their business. If the mail facilities are curtailed or limited in some way, they no longer will be able to distribute enough material to make their operations profitable." The Congressman called the material circulated widely throughout the country "disgraceful" and said "I am convinced that the lowering of moral standards in the United States today is to a large extent attributed to the wide dissemination of material of this kind . . . It is high time that somebody step in and take a stand on it and I feel that the government should do this. It is utterly ridiculous that the government mail should be used to promote this sort of operation. It is perhaps impossible to stamp out pornography as such and it is questionable whether we could do this constitutionally anyway . . . However, the householder who receives such advertisements unsolicited in the mails has a clear right to object to any right which the government bestows upon the mailer to send this material to his home."

Under the Abbitt Bill the pornography – in – the-home problem would be attacked by prohibiting the use of mails to send sexually provocative materials (1) to any home whose householder has not asked for them and (2) to a minor in any state having laws against dissemination of obscene materials to minors. Thirty - six states and the District of Columbia have such laws. The Congressman said this would place the adminstrative workload on the promoters of pornographic material rather than on the Post Office Department or the Department of Justice. Under the terms of the bill a system would be set up whereby the advertiser would obtain permission of the recipient before mailing the offensive material. Abbitt said this is preferable to other proposals which would require that those who do not want to receive such materials would have to notify the Post Master General in writing and it would then become illegal to send materials to those addresses after the expiration of thirty days.
